Portfolio

For your application to the Department of Visual Communication the portfolio should contain some 30 examples of your work.

For example:
Drawings, sketch books, works in color, collages, photos, 3D models, computer graphics, digital visualizations and such like. Parts of the works can be submitted on sticks or DVDs. No tablets please. URLs can be specified. In addition the portfolio can contain texts that address artistic and creative questions.

Should they exceed the size of a normal folder and/or an acceptable amount, large sculptural works and 3D objects can be submitted as photos.

The examples of your work should provide the Department's Admission Committee with information about the required artistic/creative talent.

The portfolio remains with the university until the entrance examination, after which it is returned to you.

Determination of artistic and outstanding and outstanding artistic talent

The examination is divided into:

1. The presentation of a portfolio of the applicant's own works,
2. the supervised production of works on set topics,
3. a discussion with the professors on the Admission Committee.

Following the positive assessment of the submitted portfolio (part 1) you will be invited to parts 2 and 3 of the examination.

Part 2 comprises two or three creative exercises, which have to be completed in one or two hours. These exercises test your drawing and creative skills and your familiarity with technology.

This is followed in part 3 by a discussion which provides you with an opportunity to explain the works you produced in the examination and your application portfolio, and to provide information about your own interests and objectives from studying.

Decision with regard to admission

All examination results will be sent to you in writing.

Should you have passed the entrance examination and the university has accepted your application, you will be informed in good time in writing of the enrollment details.
